

I do not want the NAB to dictate what type of subscription programming I can pay for and listen to. XM Radio and any other radio subscription service should be able to offer whatever programming its subscribers want and are willing to pay for. If broadcast radio cannot offer programming, including traffic and weather, on a competitive basis with subscription services, then the market should determine who prevails - not legislators or the FCC.

I repeat -- I am not in favor of allowing the NAB to dictate what I can listen to on a subscription service that I pay for.
